Indians all over the world would attest to the fact that while they fervently celebrate many festivals, the one they most eagerly anticipate each year is the festival of colours, also known as Holi. Holi is a celebration unlike any other because it brings people from various communities together to eat, dance, throw colours, and have a good time. The day also honours the springtime and the emotion of love in addition to the riot of colours. It is a day when individuals make amends for the past and begin again. It is believed that on this auspicious day, love grows when individuals paint one other with colours and restore strained bonds. Holi, also known as the Festival of Colours, is a well-known Hindu event that is mostly observed in India. The victory of good over evil and the transition from winter to spring are both celebrated. Holi, also known as "Gulal," is celebrated by people dousing each other with water and dousing one another in colour. Playing with water balloons and water pistols is how kids pass the day. People throw parties where they dance to well-known Holi songs. On Holi, people all over the country enjoy bhang. On March 27, 2021, the employees and students at the Laureate Institute of Pharmacy's Kathog Campus will celebrate Holi with enthusiasm and excitement.

Many festivals are zealously observed by Indians over the world, but the festival of colours, better known as Holi, is the one that they look forward to the most each year. A celebration unlike any other, Holi draws together members of many groups for food, dancing, colour throwing, and general fun. Along with the explosion of colour, the day also celebrates springtime and the sentiment of love. Today is a day of atonement and fresh beginnings for people. On this lucky day, people are said to paint one other with colours and mend broken relationships, which is thought to increase feelings of love. A popular Hindu celebration is called Holi, which is sometimes referred to as the Festival of Colors. People celebrate Holi, often referred to as "Gulal," by dousing one another in colour and water. Kids spend their days playing with water balloons and water guns. People host gatherings where people dance to popular Holi songs. Bhang is consumed on Holi by people all throughout the nation. The staff and students at the Kathog Campus of the Laureate Institute of Pharmacy will enthusiastically celebrate Holi on March 02, 2018.

By 6:00 PM, all of the students had assembled on the college grounds. All of the teachers and kids took part in the Goddess Ambemaa's Aarti, which served as the program's opening ceremony. Additionally, our Pooja mam informed us of the significance of this festival celebration. This event lasts nine days and is marked by a different hue at the end of each day to honour our Devis. The festival of Navratri was observed on March 21, 2017. The campus was decked out with flowers and a Rangoli on this auspicious day. After doing a pooja and asking Goddess Durga for her blessings, the celebratory fervour of bhajans and songs filled the air.

On September 25, 2017, the Faculty of Pharmacy observed World Pharmacists Day in accordance with the regulations of the Pharmacy Council of India with the theme "from research to health care: Your Pharmacist is at your service." The faculty marked the occasion by planning a number of events, such as a poster display and an awareness rally across the campus. Dr. M.S. Ashawat highlighted that a pharmacist's responsibilities extended much beyond filling prescriptions and delivering medications, and that students should not set limits on their study. He urged the young people to explore India's incredible diversity in search of additional therapeutic plants and their formulations. "The Indian government's decision to allow the export of herbal items is encouraging for this profession. He said young pharmacists and botanical scientists, according to him, are now playing an even more important role as the United States of America is now focused on finding a cure for iatrogenic disorders. The awareness rally, which began on the Laureate Institute of Pharmacy campus, was finished in Jawalamukhi.
